9. Corroborating the content of the discipline with the expectations of the epistemic community, professional associations and representative employers within the field of the program

Entrepreneurship has the ability to improve standards of living and create wealth, not only for the entrepreneurs but also for related businesses. Entrepreneurs drive change with innovation, as new products enable new markets to be developed and promote economic growth.

Most of the entrepreneurial achievements are found in IT sector, so students in IT should acquire basic entrepreneurial knowledge in order to be able to successfully pursue an entrepreneurial career.

Last but not least, the core values of entrepreneurship (innovation, creativity, independence, determination etc.) are promoted by IT companies, so this course is also suitable for students who are not considering building their own startup.
